

WOODEN ART: Artistic youngsters have been doing their own bit of recycling to create a new piece of sculpture. The wooden structure is the work of the children who take part in Firstsite's regular after-school art club and is inspired by the Martello Towers that are situated along the Essex coast. After paying a visit to the tower in Jaywick, they picked up various items that had been washed up on the beach near the tower and brought them back to the Colchester art gallery. Over a few weeks they then built their own tower, inspired by the one in Jaywick, with the finished product now on display in the garden of the Firstsite Gallery.

Picture: ADRIAN RUSHTON (51914)